

Other Supplementary Information

Triple Self-Portrait

Saturday Evening Post cover, February 13, 1960 ©1960 SEPS: Licensed by Curtis Publishing, Indianapolis, IN.

Rockwell painted many self-portraits over the years, this one, done when the artist was 66-years-old, is the most famous. While self-portraits are common, multiple self-portraits are not.

This year the original oil on canvas was loaned to the Musée du Luxembourg Paris, France, to be included in the traveling exhibition Moi! Autoportraits du XXème siècle (Me! Self-portraits of the 20th Century) which was also hosted by the Galleria degli Uffizi in Florence, Italy. This marks the first time the venerable Italian museum has hosted a contemporary art exhibition. The exhibition presented self-portraits by some of the most renowned names in 20th century art, such as Picasso, Matisse, and Degas, but the image used to promote the exhibit across Paris was the icon of all things American, Norman Rockwell.